TEDxKids@BC Regenerates One Poster at a Time

The largest TEDx conference for kids in Canada returns May 15, 2016 and is seeking young individuals across BC to participate in designing one of nineteen posters revolving around the theme “Regenerate.”

Regenerate /rəˈjɛnəˌrāt/

verb: bring into renewed existence; generate again. bring new and more vigorous life to, revive. cause to be reborn again or reproduced, reborn.

Every two weeks leading up to the event a new poster is regenerated by a different person or group. The challenge is to manipulate the letters “TEDx” and have the designs embody the theme and spirit of the Ted conference which is technology, entertainment and design. Nineteen individual posters with unique styles and ideas worth spreading will be shared through the TEDxKids@BC social media.

About TEDxKids@BC:

We are an independently organized TEDx conference that supports youth development by inviting students to participate in all areas of planning, production and design while being mentored by adults. Founded in 2011, we are the only TEDx conference that connects the audience to speakers through interactive workshops, booths and activities to empower change making and idea sharing beyond the conference. Our mission to spark deep discussion and connect small groups has inspired many individuals across British Columbia to take the stage and share their own personal experiences.
